

Name	Barbara Strathdee
Email
A climate law like the Zero Carbon Act is important because...	From 1972 When I first read "Limits To Growth" which outlined the problems to come and which we now face, I have tried to behave in a personally responsible way. Volunteering for a group educating on the impending crisis and attempting to encourage the political parties to regulate. At last the time is right. Consensus amongst NZ citizens is sufficiently strong that cross party support can happen.
Long-term target	I support the most ambitious target of reducing total greenhouse gases to net zero by 2050. I also support taking a science-based approach to ensure our efforts to reduce emissions are as impactful as possible: we should aim for negative levels of long-lived gases, while reducing short-lived gases to sustainable levels. This target should be reached by reducing our own emissions and not by using international carbon credits.
Climate Commission	I support the establishment of an independent Climate Commission that is made up of experts and provides advice, but does not make final decisions.
Adaptation	I support a plan for adaptation being included in the Zero Carbon Act.
Climate justice	A Zero Carbon Act must be just and fair in that it honours Te Tiriti o Waitangi; ensures a just transition for workers and communities; and avoids passing on the costs to future generations.
Further comments	