A climate law like the Zero Carbon Act is important because...	Because we need changes to be made on a governmental level. I spend a lot of time trying to reduce my carbon footprint because I think that it is critical that everyone does their part. I am worried for my children, humans, and other beautiful species that will likely suffer the consequences of climate change as we are already seeing changes. I want us to try mitigate the changes as much as possible.
Long-term target	I support the most ambitious target of reducing total greenhouse gases to net zero by 2050. I also support taking a science-based approach to ensure our efforts to reduce emissions are as impactful as possible: we should aim for negative levels of long-lived gases, while reducing short-lived gases to sustainable levels. This target should be reached by reducing our own emissions and not by using international carbon credits.
Climate Commission	I support the establishment of an independent Climate Commission that is made up of experts and provides advice, but does not make final decisions.
Adaptation	I support a plan for adaptation being included in the Zero Carbon Act.
Climate justice	A Zero Carbon Act must be just and fair in that it honours Te Tiriti o Waitangi; ensures a just transition for workers and communities; and avoids passing on the costs to future generations.
Further comments	This really is one of the biggest issues facing humankind and the world. I think the government needs to address this in the law with concrete plans.
