

Name	Janet Wilson
Email
A climate law like the Zero Carbon Act is important because...	The science is clear -we must limit global warming. Reducing greenhouse gases will entail huge change and many difficulties, which many people will not welcome. An element of compulsion will be necessary to ensure changes actually occur.
Long-term target	I support the most ambitious target of reducing total greenhouse gases to net zero by 2050. I also support taking a science-based approach to ensure our efforts to reduce emissions are as impactful as possible: we should aim for negative levels of long-lived gases, while reducing short-lived gases to sustainable levels. This target should be reached by reducing our own emissions and not by using international carbon credits.
Climate Commission	I support the establishment of an independent Climate Commission that is made up of experts and provides advice, but does not make final decisions.
Adaptation	I support a plan for adaptation being included in the Zero Carbon Act.
Climate justice	A Zero Carbon Act must be just and fair in that it honours Te Tiriti o Waitangi; ensures a just transition for workers and communities; and avoids passing on the costs to future generations.
Further comments	NZ has a history of leadership in a number of areas and I feel we should act now to once again show the world what principled and fair leadership can do to help our world remain liveable for our future generations.