Submission on the Water 2017 Consultation

John Dickson

To the Environment Minister,

I will be one angry voter if taxpayers and ratepayers pay for cleaning up the mess that the dairy industry has created in their greed for profit. Dairy made the mess, dairy should clean it up.

It has taken just 15 years for the dairy industry to pollute previously pristine waterways. 15 years should be the maximum target to get them clean again.

The time frame should be immediate.

Dairy farmers are members of a massive communal enterprise: they should be penalising errant members by reducing payouts and contributing the balance to the clean up.

I don't want to have my name published on the MFE website, or released via OIA - no
