

Alexis Copland
[withheld]

A basic expected role of a regional council is to ensure rivers are safe for swimming. The proposed changes are inadequate, and risk making recreation unnecessarily dangerous. Rivers are a part of who we are as New Zealanders, and it is an obvious failure when a river becomes contaminated.

The law must require councils to do their job in monitoring river water quality and keeping healthy rivers.

Alexis Copland