Submission on the Water 2017 Consultation

Jessica Hammond

To the Environment Minister,

I'm disappointed in the new freshwater regulations for New Zealand.

New Zealand needs to be an international leader in the quality of its environment; particularly because tourism is its number one GDP earner. When will the New Zealand Government recognise the inherent beauty and importance of its resources?

And if the Government refuses to acknowledge the value of its environment, at least recognise how important a healthy environment is to the economy. Without a healthy environment we have no economy. Our environment needs to be considered in every policy we make.

Please make a change that no other Government has made. Please lead the way and have some mana.

Regards,
Jess
